Attorney's Notes to Schedules E and F

Various creditors have asserted formal demands (e.g., through demand letters or the lawsuits referenced in the Statement of Financial Affairs), or informal demands (e.g., through emails or social media posts), disparaging the Debtor or making claims beyond breach of contract. Debtor disputes such claims of wrongdoing, whether previously asserted or unasserted, even if a claim is not marked as “disputed” on Schedules E and F. Claims might not be marked as “disputed” for various reasons, including in recognition that a claim arising from a creditor’s payment for unfulfilled services might exist, or that a claim of a debt might exist, apart from any claim of wrongdoing. The Schedules do not contain a place to indicate that one type of claim is “disputed” and another type of claim by the same creditor is “undisputed.” This is not an admission of any wrongdoing.

Debtor has examined the information in this filing by reference to its business records and has indicated its reasonable belief that the information is true and correct as certified in the Schedules; however, due to the large number of creditors, Debtor reserves the right to make amendments, including if additional information or different information becomes available upon further review of Debtor’s records or upon review of information from outside sources.
