NATIONAL SOURCES RANK WNY COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES

BY PAUL LANE | PLANE@BIZJOURNALS.COM

In a lot of ways, the internet has made the college selection process a lot easier.

But it has also created such a logjam of information that a prospective student can easily become overwhelmed.

A variety of publications and websites generate lists ranking the nation's colleges and universities. Each uses different criteria, creating some need to look around to get a good perspective. But figuring out which rankings to consider is a different story.

Here is a sampling of some of the more well-known sources for college rankings (Forbes, traditionally one of the more reputable sources, has not released 2021 rankings). There are a wealth of other sources to consider, but the reputations of these make them a decent place to start.

Niche

This website is a list-lover's dream, with its content entirely consisting of rankings of the best places to attend school, get a job and settle down.

Niche uses survey results to complement data it sorts when creating its college and university rankings, which are broken down by public and private schools. MIT tops the private-school ranks, while the University at Michigan is atop the public-school list. In New York state, the top schools are Columbia University and the U.S. Military Academy.

Niche does national and state rankings for most programs and services, including food quality. It also ranks party schools and Greek life.

The Princeton Review
This college admissions services company has been compiling rankings since 1992. These rankings are based on data from more than 2,000 schools, as well as in-person interviews with faculty and students. Schools picked for the Princeton Review Best 386 Colleges book are ranked in top-20 lists in 62 categories. The company does not do an overall ranking.

The only two Buffalo area schools to make the book's overall alphabetical list are Alfred University and St. Bonaventure University. St. Bonaventure was also found to have the fourth-best college radio station and was No. 18 on a list called "Lots of Hard Liquor."

rankings, starting in 1983.

The 2021 rankings are broken into four categories: national universities, national liberal arts colleges, regional universities and regional colleges; New York falls into the North category in the latter two rankings.

Princeton University is the country's best national university. The top institution in the state is Columbia University (No. 3) with Cornell University (No. 18) taking top honors upstate. The rankings are created using 17 measures of academic quality, as well as factors such as student debt and post-graduation success.

These rankings analyze resources, engagement, environment and outcomes among more than 800 institutions nationwide.

The authors say these rankings are "designed to answer the questions that matter most to students and their families: How likely am I to graduate, pay off my loans and get a good job?"

The rankings were topped by Harvard University and MIT overall, and Cornell University (ninth overall) and Columbia University (No. 15) in the state.

HOW TO READ THE PROFILES

Profiles are included for all 22 colleges and universities in Western New York (both twoyear and four-year schools). The 45 fouryear colleges in the rest of Upstate New York are also included.

Profiles contain the latest facts and figures available from the National Center for Education Statistics, generally for 2019-2020. Categories are deleted if they are not applicable to a school or if no information is available. Many of the entries are self-explanatory. Here is additional information about those that aren't.

Undergrad:

Undergraduate enrollment, both fulltime and part-time.

Per faculty: Students per faculty member.

Top degree: Highest degree awarded by the college.

Admiss %: Percentage of applicants who were admitted to the school, including those who elected to attend another institution.

Enroll %: Percentage of admitted students who enrolled in the school.

Test scores: Scores on SAT and ACT tests that outranked 25 percent or 75 percent of scores for all enrolled students. Test results are listed as a 25-75 range. (Some schools do not require applicants to take admissions tests.)

Retention: Percentage of first-year students who returned for a second year.

Grad (4 or 6): Students who earned a bachelor's degree within four or six years of entering college.

Costs: In-state tuition, fees, book expenses and on-campus room and board costs, as listed by the school for 2019-2020. (Costs are provided for that year, instead of the current academic year, to ensure uniformity in reporting.)

Financial aid: The share of undergraduates who received federal, state, local, institutional or other grants, followed by the average size of those grants.

Student race: The first five percentages encompass students who are American citizens. The sixth line shows the percentage of nonresident aliens, and the final line includes students who do not belong to any of the above groups.
